BUSINESS TROUBLES.

A meeting of the creditors of Marschuetz, Mack & Co., wholesale liquor dealers at No. 18 Dey street, was held yesterday. The statement of the affairs of the firm was presented, showing liabilities of $67,000; nominal assets, $102,000, and real assets about $25,000. A committee, consisting of Rice Smith and Lawrence Myers & Co., was appointed to investigate the ac-counts of the firm and report at a future meeting. In the meantime the property will be held for the benefit of the creditors by Mr. Frod. Lewis, the assignee.

The creditors of Richard Heather, coal dealer at No.

The creditors of Richard Heather, coal dealer at No. 603 Washington street, held a meeting yesterday at the office of Register Allen, and Mr. Robert S. Hill was chosen assignee in bankruptcy. The following claims were proved:—The Lehigh Valley Coal Company, $4,136-91, R. B. Wigton, $2,409-44; Cassner, Stickney & Weilington, $1,326-65; Richmond Taibot, $827-25; Ward & Olyphan, $760-20; J. D. K. Crook, $692-65; E. Hamblin, $455-30.

A meeting of the creditors of Henry C. Sweet, coal dealer at No. 111 Broadway and at No. 143 Liberty street, was held resierday at the office of Register Allen. Eight claims were proved, and Mr. James R. Watts was elected assignee in bankruptey.

Mr. Frederick Lewis, the assignee of A. Sieinberg, wholesale clother at No. 37 Walker street, has secured nearly enough names of creditors to flic the petition in bankruptcy for a composition at twenty cents on the doilar, in accordance with the resolution acopted by the committee of creditors.

The application of Edward Traube for his discharge from bankruptcy came before Register Allen yesterday, and as there was no opposition on the part of the creditors it will be granted.

FEROCIOUS TRAMPS.

[From the Reading Times.]

FAIRVIEW, June 13, 1877.

A terrible tragedy was enacted in the mountains near here last night. For a long time the squads of tramps who travel through this region have made the place a resort. Yesterday afternoon four or five of these outcasts stopped there. In the evening they were joined by quite a number of others. Some of the party were well supplied with liquer. The whole party indulged pretty freely, the carousal being kept up ustil a late hour. About midnight two of the tramps became engaged in an altercation about a woman, one of the party. The quarrel terminated in a general fight, nearly all of the tramps participating in it. Iwo of them, known as the "Stranger" and Bill Carr, were so severely stabbed that they died shortly after the end of the fight. The rest of the party scattered in various directions, and as no clew has been discovered of their whereabouts, it is thought they have managed to escape. One of the tramps told an old man, whom he met near here, the story of the tragedy, but he was not detained. The affair is being investigated. This is the second tragedy of the kind that has occurred in this vicinity, and naturally enough, some alarm hos been occasioned among the lew people hying about here. these outcasts stopped there. In the evening they

THE PROPHET'S COURTSHIP.

How He Won His Nineteenth Wife and How He Has Persecuted Her.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-

Will you do me the kindness to publish my state-nent in regard to the interviews flying around through the press between the delectable Eli Perkins and Brig-ham Young? Through the extraordinary power of his winning manner he has induced the Prophet to faisify rather more extensively than usual. To begin with, permit me to return thanks that he does not "count me one of his wives," The first and only happiness have ever known in my life has come to me since I severed all relations with him and his so-called religion. I scarcely think it necessary to refute the charge of lying about him, as too many of my statements have been supported by hundreds of competent and veracious witnesses, both in and out of the courts. His record speaks for itself and tells in tones of thunder of the hundreds of brutal and cold blooded mur ders that he is responsible for, and the living deaths of more than twenty thousand helpless, heart crushed women. I was married in my nineteenth year to James L. Dee, an Englishman and a brute, who, when angry, resorted to blows and violence of almost every description toward me. My womanhood and pride re-voited at such treatment, and at the end of two years I returned to my father's home with two little sons. Mr. Dee did not "run away and leave me." On the contrary, I took the step of leaving quite unknown to him, when I could no longer bear his crucky to myself and children. He made several efforts to induce me to return to him, but I did not leave until all hope of happiness was gone, and I could not be per-suaded to go back. My parents were only too glad to have me at home again, and they were not, as Brigham says, "too poor to take care of me," as all who know them can testify. Since that time they have suffered greatly, financially, through Brigham's villany. He helped me to procure a legal divorce from my husband, though he has since dealed that I had one; however, his denial does not change the fact. There is but one item of truth in his story. We did live on my father's farm at Cottonwood, and after an interval of two years, during which time I got my divorce, Brigham came down there to hold a Total axies for the day.

Total axies for th no shadows cast before gave me any conception of the misery that was to be crowded into the five years of my married life with him. My greatest sorrow was to see our Prophet, whom I had believed intalible, ite and deirand the poor, and by the wickedness of his daily life cause me to lose all latth in him and his religion. A lifelong belief was supping from my grasp, with nothing better to take its place. My doubts and fears were maddening I could not help them, and yet I thought they were wicked. I had no one to advise or aid me in any way, and I had to solve the problem alone.

A Wifel's ESCAPE

Near the close of those years of awful darkness came the conviction that Mornonism was all wrong and wicked, and the resolution to ecacpe from it at all marais. I did it, and I shall never cease to thank God for my deliverance. "That white cottage down on the corper," of which Brigham speaks, was never given to me; I was mereiy permitted to live in it, and to those who censure me for leaving it was no worse tate than the inconvenience of living in it. My mother occupied it with me, as size sliways lived with me after I was married to Young. She is with me now in Lockport, and prepared to spoak for hersell as to whether I turned her out of doors or not.

England; they make me go out to Utah with the deliberate purpose of marrying Brigham Young for his money with the deep laid plan of leaving him, bringing suit against him to gain notoriety and alimony and the intention of lecturing upon the reputation I have gained by the means. And what is the reason of this prejudice? Is it because I have done any wrong? No! It is because of the inhumanity and bestiality of Brigham Young's life, and I was unfortunate enough to have been born under his control and forced into a hateful marriage with him. I wish I could hear of one person who has ever given me the benefit of a doubt on this point. This is my sin and for it I have been cruelly mailgned. I have borne elights and contourely and shall yet have to bear them, but they shall not swerve me from my purpose. I have dealt blows to Brigham Young and his fraudulent religion that they will never recover from. Is it strange that he should strike tack? He has spent a fortune in trying to run me, but he has falled, and shall so long as I have my reason. I am not surprised at anything he may say or do; neither am't to be discouraged by his falsehoods or the world's misunderstandings. I will make honest people recognize my claim to sincerity and honesty of purpose in spite or all obstacies. I have defended myself imperfectly, but I shall continue to do it so long as I am unjustly assailed. I shall never desert the cause for which I am working while Brigham Young has power to ensiave and crush my sister women.

which would convict him."

(From the Cheyenne Leader.]

"Brigham Young," said the General, "is fast losing his influence and prestige with the Mormons, who are rapidly disintegrating. In former years they considered themselves bound to uphoid each other in every thing, whether criminal or otherwise, but of late they have been accordingly defined. have been gradually drifting apart, and the breach fast widening. They see that they can live, move and have their being whether Brigham Young rules or not and they have to a great extent grown weary of paying tithe to the so-called Prophet. He can no longer en-force his arbitrary and unjust 'laws,' and his collectors fail to gather the vast tribute which they formerly did. In case he should be indicted by the Grand Jury there would be a still greater falling off in his tollowing so that I do not apprehend even the semblance of serious trouble. He is immensely rich, and it would be an impossibility, in my opinion, to secure a jury

> THE GENTILE CAUSE. [From the Salt Lake Tribune.]

The sole object of the liberal element in Utah is to emancipate themselves and the subject Saints from the tyrannous power of this ruling priesthood. They have no desire to persecute them for their religion, would not be particular about punishing them for their crimes. They only want these everlasting gentry to

The exciting cause of the scene was the testimony of Nathan Levy, a Centre street lawyer. He, together with Simeon Abrahams and John Walling, alias Myers, it will be remembered, were arrested a few days ago on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Bowery Savings Bank out of $750, the property of a deceased depositor, Michael J. Mahoney. At the proliminary examination the prisoners all pleaded "not deceased depositor, Michael J. Mahoney. At the proliminary examination the prisoners all pleaded "not guity," but yesterday Levy entered into an arrangement by which, in consideration of immunity from prosecution, he was to turn State's evidence.

Accordingly, when the case came up before Jostica Otterbourg, Assistant District Attorney Leary placed Levy on the stand. His fellow prisoners looked a littile astonished when his name was called, but when the prosecuting officer announced the unexpected programme their amazement rose to the highost pitch.
Exposing The Conspiracy.

Levy said that he was a practising lawyer in this city and acquainted with the prisonera. Then, fixing his eyes on the Justice, apparently to avoid the bitter looks of his late companions, he continued:—"Early in May last Deputy Sheriff Abrahams, the prisoner, called at my office and said that he had the bank book of one Michael J. Mahoney, who had recently died in the Brooklyn Navy Hospital. 'I want your services,' said he, 'in relation to the same, and it will prove highly beneficial to both of us.' I asked him what I could do, and he replied, 'Maloney died suddenly, leaving $7.50 in the Bowery Savings Bank. Now, nobody in God's world knows that he left any money, and there is nobody to take any interest in him. Let us personate the dead man, obtain a judgment against him and pocket the money.'"

Levy listened to the ghastly proposition, and at once emered into the conspiracy. "I knew," continued the witness, "that irand any perjury were to be committed, and I acknowledge my participation." It was finally arranged that Levy should draw up a summons and complaint, suing Mainoney for $900. Abrahams was to serve the same, smooth over the matter of affidavits and procure a bogus complainant, and a man named Willoughby, who is still at large, acting as Malioney. Judgment was rendered, and on supplementary proceedings an order was granted directing the bank officials to submit their books for investigation. At thus point, howev as the person who should be the most rigidly pun-ished, and then waived examination. The Justice fixed the bail of Abrahams and Walling at $2,000 each and that of Levy at $1,000, to appear at the trial as a wit-ness. Abrahams and Levy turnished ball and were released, but Walling, having no bondsman, was sent to jatk.

A MEDICAL POISONER.

NEWARK, Ohio, June 12, 1877. Intense excitement prevails in Kirksville, in this last, of a prominent citizen of that place, named William Williams. Deceased complained of feeling unsuaded by his wife to have a physician called. Dr. Breeze, of the village, was sent for, prescribed ic. Mr.

Williams and left. The medicine was taken and the patient became worse. This continued until Saturday, when death relieved the sufferer. Suspicion of four play was at once directed toward Mrs. Williams and the Doctor, in consequence of a supposed intimacy that existed between the pair, and nad been a matter of gossip for some time previous. How much truth there is in this is a matter to be ascertained neresiter. The Doctor has been missing since the day of Williams' death, and it is known that he was taken to the rational station by a young son of the deceased. A post mortem was held by Drs. Ewing, Aigeo and Shaughney. The stomach and contents of deceased were taken in charge by Messrs. Richardson and Turner, of Kirksville, who at once proceeded to Cincinnati to have the rame analyzed by a chemist. Mr. Williams was buried by the Gud Fellows, of which order he was a member, on Monday last. The number of people in attendance could not have been less than 700, the largest crowd ever assembled in that part of the county on any loneral occasion. Mr. Williams was a larmer and possessed of considerable weath.
